COLLEGE STUDENTS ARE FOOD INSECURE

Today's college students seek upward mobility through higher education. Many are financially independent, have dependents, and 31% of students face food insecurity.

ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS FOR COLLEGE STUDENTS ARE BURDENSOME

Even if students would otherwise qualify for SNAP benefits based on all the other criteria, those attending class more than half time are ineligible to receive SNAP unless they meet a complicated set of exemptions.

SIMPLIFY SNAP ACCESS FOR LOW-INCOME COLLEGE STUDENTS

Updating the exemptions and streamlining the process would help today's students complete their credentials. An educated workforce is a competitive workforce. Congress needs to ensure that the most in-need students can access SNAP.
